Marieta Garcia Jordan, Second Head of the Cuban Embassy to Austria, in an interview with Radio Libre de Viena, denounced the effects of the US economic, commercial and financial blockade against her country almost six decades ago.

According to Cubaminrex, the Cuban diplomat emphasized the tightening of this policy by the current administration of President Donald Trump, as well as the adoption of new measures and restrictions due to the activation of Title III of the Helms-Burton Law and its extraterritorial character.

In the exchange, Garcia Jordan also condemned "the naval blockade that hinders the arrival in Cuba of the necessary fuels for the economy and social development, among other actions of extraterritorial scope and violations of international law.
